Seniors

Dear Graduates of the Class of 2009,

The time is now upon us and we have left the Hill. It has been a memorable journey—one full of trials, tribulations, fond and joyous moments.

We all arrived at Hampden-Sydney College with preconceived notions of college and the experiences we would share. Knowing that things don't always work out exactly as planned, I am certain that we all gained far greater than we expected during our tenure at this beloved institution. I admit that I was nervous, really apprehensive, about starting life anew; however, I learned quickly that this is an institution where everyone truly cares about you and wants to nurture your intellectual and personal development. Personally, I will always remember the day I stepped onto campus and felt reassured that I was home. Moreover, I was then and will forever be proud to say I am a part of the Hampden-Sydney family. This institution has made me more of a complete man than I would have believed and when I look back at our class in its entirety I see the same in each individual. During our time at Hampden-Sydney College, we have all benefitted from our participation in diverse activities, opportunities and traditions that convey rich value and meaning. Our experiences on the Hill have shaped our lives to the highest degree; thus, we have all been fortunate to have dwelt for some time within this very special community.

As we go on to be a light in this world, please let us remember Hampden-Sydney College and the invaluable qualities it has instilled in us. Furthermore, please, let us be the embodiment of what our founding founders intended.

Warm Regards, and best wishes in your future endeavors,

Fitz Robertson

Clubs & Organizations

The Ebb and Flow Of Clubs

If you leaf through the many issues of the Kaleidoscope, the pictures of clubs can be full of people or nearly devoid of people from year to year. What explains this phenomenon?

The very nature of a four year institution promises a variety of interests and social groups over the years. Because of this, clubs tend to grow and shrink in relation to the interest of the student body. The survival rates between clubs can depend on many factors.

First, each member of a club learns to balance his academic demands and his extra-curricular activities. It is a testament to the academic rigor that students are constantly compelled to finish that one more reading assignment.

Second, technology has dispersed the interests, time, and benefits that clubs can quickly adapt to. An X-Box can be much more interesting and engaging and, all-the-while, being less time consuming than a club. So students can relax with the press of an on-button, crack open a beer, connect to the internet, and enjoy the world without leaving their dorm room. And, although men may enjoy the outdoors, the ease of finding competition, booze, and more, indoors is a powerful lure against the drive to go to a club meeting especially with all the homework that must be done!

All these factors and more combine with the unique personalities of each class. But, enough of the social analysis!

It is enough that the clubs herein have seen their share of ebbs and flows, and each club has contributed in its own way to what is Hampden-Sydney. In an existential way, Hampden-Sydney is what its parts do, and the descriptions and pictures of Hampden-Sydney's clubs that follow pay tribute to all those clubs.

Proof of Student Vitality

Every August, Pig on the Point showcases the numerous student-led clubs on the Hill. From 2005 to 2009, there was not a time when the club fair was not shuttled inside because of inclement weather (sometimes it seemed that dew was the only impediment), yet this made everyone acutely aware of the many clubs on campus—and the space they took up in the Moans. In the crowded and bustling side rooms of the Moans with some ambitious clubs spilling out into the main dinning area, each club sells itself to the wide-eyed and naively over-extending Freshmen. The officers of the clubs greet each Freshmen with at least a sign-up sheet and a promise to put them on an e-mail list. But as all of this is going on, one cannot help but ponder on the vitality of the campus community. We are told that our school is small and private, but one look at the activities around campus show that the student body's ambitions are large and the student body is public and very social.

The Hampden-Sydney Community watches as the 2nd Annual Irish Parade, filled with clubs, marches on Via Sacra from Crawledy Forum to the Hampden-Sydney Library

Student Government

Left: Student Body President-Elect Pierce Robbins for 2010 stands next to Student Body President of 2009, Fitz Robertson

Right: Student Court Chairman Edward Hess

Left: Secretary Treasurer John "Scott" Anderson

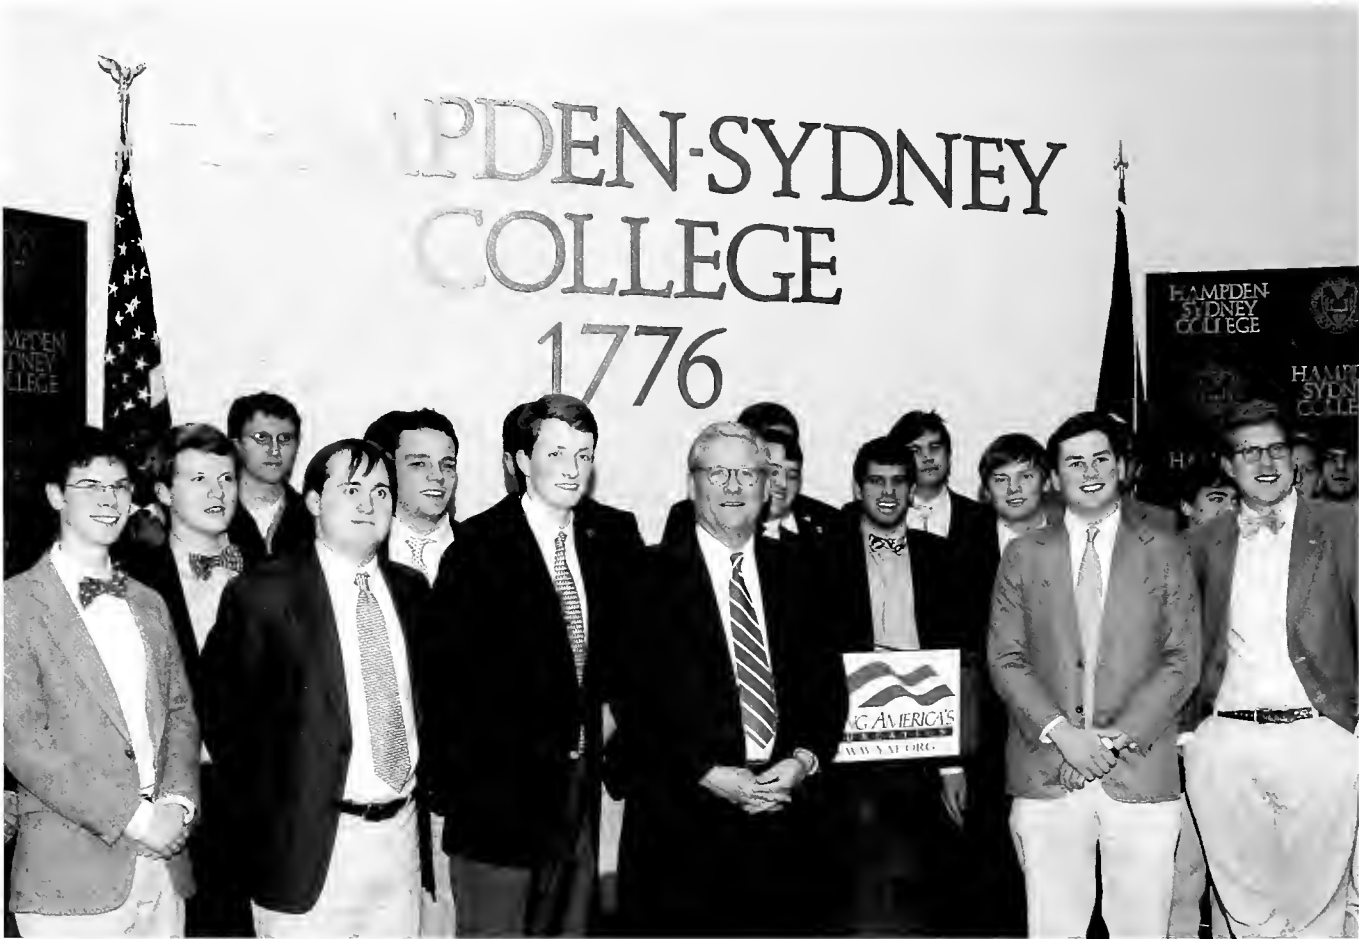

The Student Government is a strong example of the ambition and public nature of the student body. During election seasons (nowhere near as long as national campaigns, thank God) posters are plastered across campus. Those that are elected become de facto leaders of the campus, and they then represent the student body to the faculty, administration, and Board of Trustees. Some may point to the low voter turn-out rate as evidence of student disinterest in the community, but the vicious and high-speed of the Hill's rumor mill, in which everyone seems to be involved, is the greatest indication of student involvement. The rumor mill at Hampden-Sydney has undoubtedly influenced elections—a harsh but democratic method. Nevertheless, the Student Government has proven that the Student Body is no slouch, and the student's can thank the Student Government for events like popular and vastly successful events like the Winter Ball and the continued protection of the Hampden-Sydney Honor Code and Gentleman.

The College Republicans

The College Republicans is dedicated to the study of the American political system and the philosophies of the Republican Party. A chartered member of the College Republican Federation of Virginia, the Society is represented on the state executive board.

The Society has been involved with educational, political, and social events on campus and across the state. The Society was host to special guest speakers and was involved with campaigns on the local, state, and national levels. Furthermore, the Society worked with College Republican organizations from other schools of the C.R.F.V.

The Acousticals

The Acousticals puts a fun twist on performing a capella music. The group performs "Rockapella" style music using just their voices as instruments in a style all their own at H-SC. This exciting, goofy group performs vocal spectacles from the genres of hip-hop, country, pop, rap, contemporary, and classics - using beat boxing, face melting guitar fills, and even a bit of dancing (to woo the girls of course...).

Union-Philanthropic Literary Society

The oldest student organization at the College and the second-oldest debating society in America, the Union-Philanthropic dates from 1789.

For over two centuries, the Union-Philanthropic Society has offered Hampden-Sydney a unique forum for discussion. Whether debating the ethics of slavery—in 1810—or discussing the various views of the historical Jesus—in 1996—the Society has continually provided the College with an unparalleled source for the oratorical and literary improvement of her sons.

Rather than narrowly focus on a single subject, the Society has long complemented the College’s liberal curriculum by addressing topics from a variety of issues. Each week, the Society analyzes a different item from literature, politics, or the arts. The Society’s exercises quickly train its members to think clearly, argue coherently, and speak forcefully on any topic.

The Society has seen a growth in membership, and it faces a bright future.

Here on the Hill, you could easily say that the "King of Sports" is Football. Each game averaged 4237 attendees- not including the Tiger himself and the multitudes gathered around the stadium itself. The 2008 season saw the Tigers ranked for the first time in decades and fall one game short of winning the ODAC title for the second year in a row. However, scoring 308 total points (25% more than our opponents) is not a bad consolation prize.

Traditions

Last Wishes From Our President...

Dear Class of 2009:

I write this letter for the Kaleidoscope 2009 and the members of the Class of 2009. As I compose the letter in my office in Atkinson on an April evening, I reflect upon the four years that you and I have spent on The Hill. The trials and tribulations have been many and this edition of this ancient tradition will help us remember the times we shared while helping us refocus on the people and events that have filled the days of your undergraduate years.

It is a bittersweet time for me. With you I will leave Hampden-Sydney College and go my separate way as I turn the reins of the presidency over to Dr. Chris Howard, the newly elected 24th President of the College. Lorraine and I have enjoyed our nine years on this campus immensely, and especially our interactions with the Class of 2009.

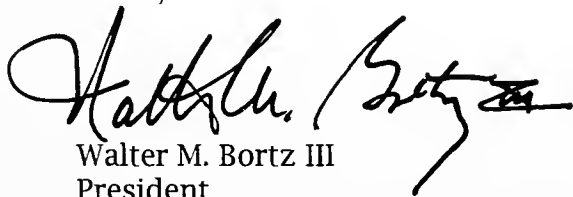

In this book are the names, pictures and texts of precious memories. It is all about a campus that has both sheltered you and expanded your horizons. It will help you remember your beginnings on The Hill, among the wooded trails and underneath the ancient oaks. I hope that these pictures of your campus are firmly implanted in your mind's eye, and from these pictures you may recall familiar campus scenes often and with great fondness.

And so you depart this grand old campus, knowing that you have learned the lessons of a good person and a good citizen permitting you to take up the mantle of public service, professions, callings and leadership for which these years have prepared you. We know that positions in your professional lives will come and go. You will amass accolades and successes. Throughout your life, in no small part because of what you have learned here, you will provide for those who are less fortunate, extend a helping hand when given the opportunity and give back when and where it is appropriate. You will make your friends, teachers and colleagues proud of their associations with you, and always you will be the embodiment of Hampden-Sydney.

Remember your alma mater. Remember your beginnings on this Hill, among these beautiful buildings and broad lawns. Let these pictures refresh those implanted in your mind's eye so that you may recall well your halcyon days when life was less complicated, Fraternity Circle was but a short walk away, the bell rang regularly from the Tower, and shorts and flip flops were worn year round.

Return often. Sing the praises of this College always. Give so that others may benefit from this special place as you have. Keep in touch with friends, coaches, faculty and staff. Enjoy the wonderful life that is born from this extraordinary experience at this extraordinary college.

God bless,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Walter M. Bortz III". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a long, sweeping underline that extends to the right.

A Tradition of Rebellion and Revelry

by James Bonney

The Watkins Bell Tower in the center of campus may invoke prospective students and their parents to remark, "how quaint," but students understand the quaint quality belies something entirely different. The bell's history is as unique as the history of the college, and Brinkley's On This Hill shows that the bell's quaintness comes from the meaning it has had for the college over the years. Sure, it is nice that we have a bell rung manually to signal the start and end of class, but what is much more interesting is the symbol the Bell has become; namely, the Bell Tower has become a symbol of rebelliousness and revelry.

Actually, the Bell Tower in itself is not a symbol of rebelliousness. Rather, what is done to the Bell Tower is the symbol, for whenever the students disliked what the school was doing; the Bell would conveniently go missing. Students would remove the Bell from the Tower and hide it somewhere in the forest until their demands were met. This rebelliousness often led the instigators to be expelled or suspended, but such punishment did not, evidently, prevent students from continuing the practice. And the student's demands were also rarely met just by virtue of the protest embodied in the missing Bell. Still, the tradition of using the Bell to express discontent is well documented. For example, when President Leutze tried to make the Watkins Bell Tower automatic, students protested early into the morning, with the bell tower set on the President's lawn. After an emergency meeting held in John's Auditorium, President Leutze revoked his decision to modernize the Bell Tower.

The revelry associated with the Bell Tower is a much less documented phenomenon but equally responsible for a student's understanding of the Bell's quaintness. On occasion, on some rather raucous weekend, one might hear the Bell Tower sound. The Bell's ring would pierce, ever so briefly, other ambient noises (thumping noises emanating from Fraternity circle, the hiss of escaping carbonation from ice-cold beverages, etc), and a declaration was made. Though unconfirmed, rumors abound about a group of people, hooded, ringing the bell at night for some unknown signification. Although reasons for the Bell's ringing may vary, the sound has usually signified an eventful night.

The longevity of these traditions is now in question, but the memories will remain. The Bell Tower is now roofed so that access to it is limited, and the string which rings the Tower has been raised. Still, the sight of the Tower is a naked reminder of the traditions which surround its truly quaint nature.

Beat Macon Week

If Hampden-Sydney were a country, this week would be the national holiday. During the week, students pay to ride mechanical bulls, dunk Deans, and destroy the "Macon-Mobile"- among other things- in celebration of the longest rivalry between two Southern schools which culminates in the Saturday face off between the Tigers and the Yellow Jackets on the gridiron. The Game, as the football match is known, has been played continuously since 1895 making it one of the college's longest standing- and arguably best loved- traditions. Other traditions of the week include an exchange of Letters between the two colleges' paper editors and spontaneous chanting.

RED HOT CHILI PEPPERS
Experience

St. Patrick's Day Parade

May the road rise to meet you,
May the wind be always at your back,
May the sun shine warm upon your face, the rain fall soft upon
your fields,
Until we meet again.
Happy St. Paddy's Day.

Meet The Creators

Nikki Reamer '09
Editor and Chief

"I, along with the help of my staff and many others, have put a lot of effort into this book in hopes of showing all the students the importance of our yearbook. Like I said in my opening, it may not be perfect, but it will remind us students of our wonderful years at H-SC and show others how we roll; that was my ultimate goal. I miss everyone already. See you guys at the reunion."

Jim Bonney '09
Assistant Editor

"I hope everyone enjoys the memories held within this book; It has been a blast taking photos of H-SC shenanigans and helping put it together, and I hope to see everyone at our first reunion!"

Adam Lees '11
Assistant Editor

"I came onto the Kaleidoscope staff late to work on the sports section because Nikki needed extra hands. Despite a new-found irritation with Macs, I thoroughly enjoyed it and wish the Class of 2009 the best- especially Boss Lady."

Congratulations Seniors

William R. Showalter

We're proud of your accomplishments at Hampden-Sydney College, and welcome you into our family business.

Love Always,
Mom and Dad

Zachary A. Campbell

Dear Zachary,

The last seventeen years of school haven't always been easy. But through it all, your effort, perseverance and determination have been something we have watched with such pride. We couldn't be more proud or happier for you Zachary.

Congratulations and all our love,
Mom and Dad

Kristoffer A. Norbo

Dear Kris,

We are very proud of your accomplishments and most importantly your graduation from HSC. You have developed into a fine young man with a bright future. Enjoy everyday of your life and maximize your potential.

Love you very much!
Mom and Dad.

Nikki Reamer

Congratulations go to our baby girl that has grown to be a beautiful woman. You are the spirit of dad and I, and we are so proud. Every day we see things in you, carried down from us, your sisters, grandparents, aunts and uncles. We will not always be with you to talk to and hug, but forever we will be with you in your heart.

With all our love, Best of Luck!

Daddy & Mommy, Chelsie, Jennie, Robyn, PaPa(in memory), Grandma, Poppi(in memory) and Nannie.

Alexander C. Matthews

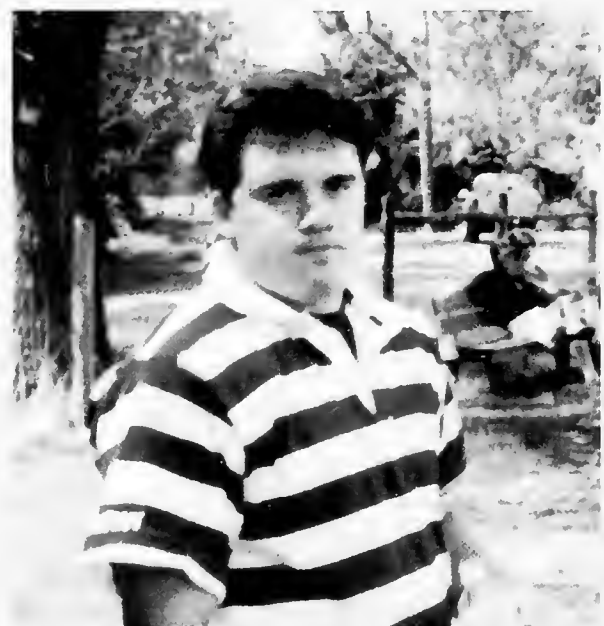

Congratulations
Alexander Curtis
Matthews.

We Love You and We
Are Proud of You!
